

Disaster Recovery Program

Need

A leading manufacturer of welding equipment asked RiverPoint to plan an extensive recovery effort after a major fire destroyed a key production facility and all existing management application systems and hardware. As an adjunct to this effort, the client also requested a simultaneous cost-reduction analysis of existing business practices in order to provide a framework to create cost effective practices and processes.

Solution

RiverPoint spearheaded a series of intensive procedure review sessions working directly with the owners of the firm, executive management, engineers, production managers, procurement specialists, line workers and delivery planners. The team examined production issues, problem areas and potential pitfalls that were documented in each team session to determine a low-risk and urgent recovery action plan and recommended more efficient business processes and practices. For this project, RiverPoint developed and maintained all project deliverables and solutions.
